Microchanneling is an elective procedure for cosmetic purposes only. I have had the opportunity to ask questions and understand the nature, goals, limitations and possible complications of this treatment. I have had the opportunity to discuss alternative forms of treatment and understand that results may vary.

CONTRAINDICATIONS

While Microchanneling treatments are safe and effective for most women and men, there are some people who will not be good candidates for treatments. Here is a general contraindication:

- Pregnancy – if you are pregnant or nursing you are advised to not receive any Microchanneling treatments. To date there have been no studies conducted to see what effects these treatments may have on the unborn child, but as a general rule, pregnant women should stay away from any type of cosmetic/elective procedures.
- Diabetes – unstable diabetes patients should not be treated due to healing problems.
- Active Herpes Simplex in the treatment area – treatment is possible once the outbreak is healed, however it may be advisable to take prescription strength antiviral medication to keep this condition in remission during the treatment series.
- Dry skin – if your skin is overly dry, you will need to start moisturizing and ensure the condition is under control prior to undergoing any treatment.
- Any active inflammatory skin condition e.g. eczema, psoriasis, infection, rash or any type of dermatitis at the treatment site (because it may aggravate the condition).
